The Workshop

This two-day training session will assist social studies educators in developing their local curriculum around rigorous, meaningful and engaging units of instruction to support the new K-12 Social Studies Essential Standards. During the workshop, participants will collaborate to design a sample unit that can be used to train other social studies educators in their district or school. Ultimately, this training session will help social studies educators make more informed decisions about what students should understand, know, and be able to do according to the NC Social Studies Essential Standards.

Each district or charter school is limited to four participants, including an instructional leader. A waiting list is provided for each session in the event additional space is available.

To register select the attendees from your district or charter school who will attend and have one person complete the registration for your team. If you are interested in attending as an individual or if you are an administrator wanting to send a team from your school and are not sure if your district is planning to send register a team please contact your central office and your district's social studies support staff first.

Workshop Cost

There is no cost to participate in the workshop.
Travel reimbursement and substitute pay will be the responsibility of the LEA and or school.
